FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1915

Robert Lansing has been appointed by President Wilson secretary of state to succeed William J. Bryan.

State Auditor Vic Donahay has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election next year on the democratic ticket. Donahay has made good in office and any one of the half dozen republicans who seek the opportunity to run against him will find the sledding rough.

Gov. Clayton of Georgia on Monday commuted the death sentence of Leo M. Frank, alleged slayer of little Mary Fagan, to life imprisonment. While public sentiment is strongly against Frank in the neighborhood where the crime was committed many thousands of people in all parts of the United States believe him innocent of the crime charged against him and left nothing undone to secure commutation of his sentence. Gov. Clayton was strongly condemned for his action but he declared: "I am satisfied that I did right." Frank is firm in the faith that at no distant day his innocence will be established.

A New York correspondent writes: If the theory of democratic politicians as to the ulterior reason for W. J. Bryan's resignation from the president's cabinet proves to be correct—that is, that his purpose to compete with Mr. Wilson for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1916—it is regarded as very probable that other men will enter the contest and that a free-for-all, such as took place in Baltimore in 1912, will take place next year. Democrats who have aspired to the presidency in recent years are watching Mr. Bryan's course with the keenest interest, and as soon as they are convinced that he is really after the nomination it is believed they also will begin action with a view to determining their chances of winning the prize next summer. Signs already are becoming visible that Democrats, ambitious to reach the White House, are becoming attentive to the possibilities of the situation that has begun to develop since Mr. Bryan's break with the president, and that no opportunity will be lost by them to advance their individual interests. The event of the former secretary of state does not permit Mr. Wilson to have the field to himself.

THE U. S. EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

Few of our readers are, perhaps, aware that the United States Government, through the Department of Labor, has inaugurated as a part of the Division of Information a country-wide employment bureau. It is the belief of those connected with the work that it will go far toward improving business conditions in the United States.

The Department of Labor has established Distribution Branches throughout the country for the purpose of the one hand of developing the welfare of the wage earners of the United States and improving their opportunities for profitable employment, and on the other hand of affording to employers a method whereby they may make application for such help as they need, either male or female, citizens or alien residents, and have their wants supplied through said Distribution Branches.

Comparative statistics show that there has been in some portions of the United States a surplus of labor, while in other portions a deficiency. It is believed that this condition will be almost, if not entirely, eliminated by this work.

The United States has been divided into eighteen sections, or "Distribution Zones," as they are called, and in each of these zones an employment office has been opened. At these offices the employer who needs help of any kind, skilled or unskilled, be he farmer, merchant, manufacturer, or whatever his business, can secure what he wants without any more trouble or expense than the work of stating what he desires, and the expense of a postage stamp if he finds it inconvenient to call at the Distribution Office in person. Neither is any fee accepted by the government from those seeking employment. Every postmaster in the United States is a representative of this Employment Bureau. At every postoffice will be found, on application to the postmaster, blanks for use of employers in need of help and for the use of persons seeking employment. These blanks, upon being handed to the postmaster are transmitted by him, free of charge, to the proper zone office, where both blanks are properly registered, and proper help is selected for the employer in need of help, either from applicants residing in the city in which the office is located, or from the applications on file.

At the Distribution Office the best interests of the employer are kept constantly in mind, and only such help is selected for positions as are, in the opinion of the office in charge, well qualified to perform the duties required.

Will Give a Concert.

The Central Choir of Youngstown, W. Shelly Jacobs, director, will give a concert in the M. E. Church, Monday, June 28, at 8:30 p. m. Eastern time. Admission, 25 cents. Program: Chorus, Soldiers' Chorus and Hallelujah Chorus, together with solos, quartets, etc., will characterize a program that cannot fail to please.

YOUNGSTOWN

J. R. Wooley, who is recognized as one of the most valuable members of the city council, is making an active campaign to be elected president of council and numerous friends and supporters believe he will win. Judge Barnum on Monday rendered a decision in the jury injunction case, holding that the license clause providing for an annual payment of $25 was legal but that the indemnity bond provision could not be enforced until the ordinance has been changed.

If the iron and steel business is as good as reported a boom should soon strike every line of business in the city.

The Youngstown Central league team gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a wallop here last Sunday, defeating the visitors in a 12-inning session by a score of 1 to 0.

S. Hayes, an Ohio State Telephone Company employee, was imprisoned for half an hour in an underground conduit Monday, when a street car hit a pole that was being used in the work, and was disabled. The car stopped directly over the manhole in which Hayes was working.

Three personal injury suits growing out of the dip the dip accident at Idora park were filed in common pleas court Saturday. At total of $50,000 is asked for injuries sustained. The suits are against the Idora Park Toboggan company. The suits are brought by Ina Pollock, Jean Currie and Louis Gerlach. Ina Pollock and Jean Currie each ask $20,000 damages while Louis Gerlach is seeking to recover damages in the sum of $10,000. Each plaintiff alleges that he or she was injured in the accident at Idora park on the pleasure apparatus popularly known as the dip the dips, on Sunday, May 23, 1915. Plaintiffs charge that their injuries were brought about by the negligent operation of the contrivance.

Griff Jones of this city has been appointed deputy state oil inspector for this district, succeeding S. M. Raymond who held the job for quite a number of years. The place pays from $750 to $1200 a year.

The Masonic picnic held in Idora park Wednesday afternoon was attended by a large number of members of the order and their families.

Automobile accidents have been numerous the past week in the city and its environs.

The fight for the mayor nomination on the republican ticket goes merrily on. It is regarded as very probable that other men will enter the contest and that a free-for-all, such as took place in Baltimore in 1912, will take place next year. Democrats who have aspired to the presidency in recent years are watching Mr. Bryan's course with the keenest interest, and as soon as they are convinced that he is really after the nomination it is believed they also will begin action with a view to determining their chances of winning the prize next summer. GREENFORD

June 24—Andrew Reichstadt was born in Wurttemberg, Germany, Dec. 13, 1827, and died June 15, 1915, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. V. V. Zimmerman, in this place. He came to America in 1853 and for many years followed his trade of tinsmith. He was the first station agent at Greenford for the Erie Railroad Co., performing the duties for 22 years, and then was in charge of the pumping station at the water tank for nine years. He was also engaged in the manufacture of tile and building blocks for a long time. For more than half a century he was member of Canfield lodge of Odd Fellows and 54 members of that order attended his funeral. He united with the Lutheran church when 13 years of age and was a well read Bible student. The deceased was well known for miles around and his

Five bids were opened Friday afternoon by the township trustees on the contract for building the roads near Greenford, the former contract for which was held illegal in a suit brought by taxpayers. The low bidder on the east and west and the north and south roads through Greenford was the Smith Construction Co. of Youngstown, whose price is $32,245.56 for 3.65 miles of macadam with glutin treatment. The L. H. Young Construction Co. was the low bidder for the second section of the east and west road, the figure being $10,713.10 for 1.32 miles.

Chicago, June 24.—Farmers of today are different from those of 20 years ago. E. T. Meredith of Des Moines, Ia., publisher of a farm journal, told delegates attending the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. "Some of you advertisers act as if you didn't think the farmers wear coats or shoes," Mr. Meredith said. "Why do you know that 50 per cent of all farmers wear garters? You have not realized that the farmer pays from $15 to $45 for a suit of clothes."

WILLIS GIVES ADVICE TO ALL JOB HUNTERS

Tells Them That They Hurt Their Interests by Being Too Insistent for Patronage.

MOST OF POSITIONS UNDER CIVIL SERVICE

If You Want to Land Job, the Best Way Is to Send in Your Application With Endorsements, and Let It Go as That.

Special Columbus Correspondent.

Columbus, June 24.—Job hunters are getting on the nerves of Gov. Willis. He has just given out a statement in which he made it plain that the fellows wishing to annex themselves to the state's payroll hurt their interests by being too insistent in their efforts to land patronage. Six applicants who were tentatively decided upon for good paying berths lost their chances of getting appointed because of too much pestering. The chief executive gave the jobs to others who had not bothered him so much. Contrary to the general impression, there are not hundreds of positions "lying around loose." Most of the positions are under civil service and will remain under the protection of the law for that until the new civil service law goes into effect. Now and then there is a non-civil place to be filled, and in such cases the governor loses no time in acting. Not wishing to run amuck of the present law, the governor is chary about firing anyone under its protection. "If you want to land a job, the best way is to send in your application with endorsements and let it go as that," according to official dictum. Some applicants come to Columbus, insist upon seeing the governor in their own behalf, usually when he is busy with some state business, and then upon returning home send politicians or delegations down to Columbus to urge the governor to make the appointment. The applicants also influence every politician of supposed influence to write the governor for this. Bombarding the governor with letters does no good. In fact, it is these tactics that "quer" the applicant's chances. The job hunters and boosters have been making life so miserable for the chief executive that it has been necessary for him to use a secret entrance to the executive offices to escape them. They watch for him on the street, at his hotel and at the corridor of the entrance to his offices. They take up so much of his time that he finds it hard to get business transacted during office hours. This necessitates his return at night, and it is often past the midnight hour before he is ready to retire to his hotel. The office seekers pretty nearly drove Forrest Tipton, the governor's secretary, into nervous prostration. For the past week it has been necessary for him to absent himself from the office a part of the time to obtain much needed rest.

Hit Tipping System Hard.

The 73,000 members of the United Commercial Travelers have been striking a terrible blow at the tipping system, according to the latest reports of the officers of the order, which has headquarters in Columbus. Last year there was general agreement to "cut down" upon the tipping practice and to devote the amount saved to benevolent purposes, particularly to the care of widows and orphans of deceased members. The result thus far this year gives a good insight into the enormity of the tipping evil of the day. For even though far from all of the travelers observed the agreement and though most of them merely reduced gratuities to a small degree, the amount thus saved and turned into national headquarters for the benefit of the poor and helpless was more than $13,000 for the present year, which is scarcely half over.

Five Referendums on Horizon.

The expectancy of referendums against recently enacted laws is growing hourly. Just now there are five referendum movements on the horizon whereas one week ago it was hardly safe to predict more than two. Today three prospective laws are certain to be submitted to popular approval or disapproval at next fall's election, and they are the congressional gerrymander, the Gallagher bill amending the Green coal miners' wage law and the agricultural decentralizer. The two others that are likely to be referred to popular sanction or veto are the civil service measure and the McDermott bill, which revised the state liquor license law. At the present moment all other new laws seem safe from public reference.

Suggestions for Saving

In order to get the most good out of your Savings Account you must do the best you can for it. Small deposits are all right as long as that is the best you can do, but larger ones are better. The more interest you take in your account the faster it will grow and the more pleasure you will have in adding to it.
